PATENT OFFICE NOTICES

Printing Practitioners' Names on Patents

On September 8, 1972 (903 O.G. 389), the Patent Office requested comments on a proposal regarding the printing of a firm name or the names of individual practitioners on the patent, as indicated by the applicant at the time the issue fee is paid. The comments received indicated strong support for the proposed procedure.

In view of these comments, the Patent Office has adopted the following revised procedure for printing a firm name, the names of up to three registered patent practitioners, or no practitioner's name on the patent.

The Notice of Allowance form, POL–85, has been redesigned in part to provide a space on POL–85b, the Base Issue Fee Transmittal form, for the person submitting the base issue fee to indicate, for printing, the names of up to three registered patent attorneys and agents or, alternatively, the name of a single firm which has as a member at least one registered patent attorney or agent. If the person submitting the base issue fee desires that no practitioner's name be printed on the patent, the space provided on the revised Base Issue Fee Transmittal form should be left blank. If no name is given, no name will be printed.

The adoption of this new procedure is intended to solve various problems encountered since the practice of recognizing firms was discontinued. While some slight additional effort on the part of the attorney or agent is thus involved if he desires to have a printed entry on the patent, the following advantages are provided by the new procedure: (1) it permits printing firm names on patents even though firms are no longer registered with or recognized by the Patent Office in new application; (2) it allows the names of those individuals who actually performed the work of preparing and prosecuting the application to appear on the printed patent; and (3) it grants an attorney or agent the option of not having his name appear on the printed patent.

The revised form POL–85 will be placed in use as soon as a supply of the form is received from the printer. Thereafter, the new practice, as indicated above, will be followed in patent printing as the Base Issue Fee Transmittal Portion of that form (POL–85b) is received.

RENE D. TEGTMEYER,
Acting Commissioner of Patents.
